SPEAKS FOR LABOR

Administration Attacked for Policy of Relief to Unemployed

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—(AP)—Governor Pinchot Saturday fired a broadside into what he termed "A magnate controlled coalition" in Washington, declaring that there are no party lines in Washington any more. The governor said Senator Robinson, Arkansas Democratic floor leader, is "in everything but name a standpat Republican."

The governor's address, scheduled for delivery at a Philadelphia central labor union mass meeting on unemployed relief, attacked the administration for its relief policy. "It was Robinson, Pinchot said, who led the real fight against the Coston-LaFollette relief bill."

Texarkana Man Injured in Wreck

E. T. Gentry Near Death in Arkansas Hospital From Burns

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Explosion of two automobile tanks after the cars collided near Austin Friday afternoon resulted in the critical injury of E. T. Gentry, 23, of Texarkana, and Mrs. Ruby E. Langston of Austin.

Badly burned when trapped in the crushed cab of his truck, Gentry was believed dying at a hospital here. He was rescued by Walter Huff, of Austin. Gentry's home is on R. F. D. No. 1, Texarkana, Texas.

His clothing was a mass of flames when Huff pulled him from the truck. Huff threw him into a ditch partly filled with water and extinguished the fire.

Mrs. Langston was burned about the legs. Two children in Mrs. Langston's car, her son Buddy and a playmate, were hurried to safety from the car and suffered only minor bruises.

Witnesses said Mrs. Langston was driving south and before turning off the highway signalled that she was about to turn. They said Gentry, also traveling south, was unable to stop.

South to Solve Own Crisis, Pioneer Says

B. T. Clark, Tupelo (Miss.) Planter and Banker, Writes Another Interesting Letter to Friend of Childhood, J. S. Wilson, Sr., of Columbus

Editor's Note: Readers of The Star will recall a letter from B. T. Clark, pioneer Mississippi planter, and banker, to J. S. Wilson, Sr., of Columbus, this county, which we published two years ago. Here is another communication from Mr. Clark discussing Southern affairs. He writes Mr. Wilson from Tupelo, Miss., as follows:

The great trouble with the whole country is the want of confidence; and there must be something done to rekindle this, especially with our banks. Our banks are the only source for agricultural people to reach the money of the country.

Must Have Banks

The capital of America has gradually floated into the hands of a few individuals and a few corporations, and it is only through the banks that this money can be reached. If our farmers do not stop doing as they are in this section, they will destroy the South. Instead of leaving their money in the banks, they are taking it home and burying it, or lending it to the government, through the postoffice. I suppose the Northwestern farmers are doing the same way with the money they are getting from the sale of wheat, as I see their bank failures are just as great as ours here in the South.

As I see things, each state will have to take care of its own. For instance, the state of Arkansas, or the state of Mississippi, will have to get behind the good banks; see that they are properly conducted and then they will have to induce the people to deposit every dollar they have in the banks, so that the money can be used in building up and helping enterprises in the state.

Story of On Old German

The man owning your father's old place, adjoining mine, died about four years ago. He was a German who came over here to fight the Rebels during the Civil war; however, after staying about 25 years in Mississippi, he became very much of a Rebel himself—a true Mississippian. He died leaving an estate of something over a million dollars. The son, whom he left your father's place and quite a lot of Colonel Trice's place, instead of following the agricultural course that his father took, commenced to make cotton and it has only taken two crops of cotton to get him into financial trouble. He sold off all of his cattle, sheep and hogs and went to Texas and bought a plantation. He planted his crop and gathered it while he made a good crop, the price rendered him unable to pay the balance he had contracted on the place and he lost it. He is back again on his place adjoining me, without money or any facilities to run on.

I have neglected to mention the sample of cotton you sent to me. It is full 1-1/2 inch in length of staple and beautiful in grade and strength—such cotton here would bring 12 1/2 cents. Our Delta Staple Cotton Growers association is getting around 16 cents for such cotton and I do not think they would sell for less. You ought to organize an association of that kind in your state.

Market Hurt by Tariff

As you are aware, our people had a tariff put on this cotton several years (Continued on page three)

Three Held After Robbery Attempt

Merchant Patrolmen Prevents Burglary of Grocery Plant

LITTLE ROCK.—Two men and a woman were held at police headquarters early Friday morning after an attempt apparently had been made to break into the warehouse of the Western States Wholesale Grocery Company at Third and Collins streets.

Alber Hays, 318 1/2 West Sixth street, was arrested near the grocery company's building at midnight by Merchant Patrolman Campbell after two women pedestrians told him they had seen a white man try to enter the door. An investigation disclosed an attempt had been made to jimmy the door, Campbell said.

Captain Martin and Sergeant Henson, Trawick and Witherspoon of the Detective Bureau arrested Hays. Hays and W. H. Headrick at Hays' room. Mrs. Headrick, who, Captain Martin said, was not arrested.

The two couples had been living in the room for two weeks, police said.

Police Take Niles, Ohio Youth From Kidnapers Den

James DeJute Found in Gambling House Eight Miles From Home

TWO MEN ARRESTED

Men Admit Crime: Expected to Demand Ransom From Parents

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio.—(AP)—James DeJute, 11-year-old Niles, Ohio boy who was kidnapped while on his way to school early Wednesday morning was recovered Saturday morning in a gambling house about 8 miles from Niles.

Two men who police said they thought were the actual kidnapers were captured by a posse of six city officers.

The DeJute boy's father is a wealthy contractor.

The men were booked at the county jail as John Demareo, 30, and Dowell Hargraves, 27, both of Youngstown, Ohio.

Police said the men admitted the kidnapping, and were intending to demand ransom.

Acting on a more thread of information Saturday morning a posse of officers was quickly organized and broke into the house where the boy was found.

They found the boy in a secret tunnel with the men, after kicking through a false wall.

The boy said he was not mistreated, but was fed a monotonous but plentiful diet of soft-boiled eggs.

One of the first things he asked for after greasing his overjoyed parents was something to eat.

Texas Bank Is Robbed of $10,000

Overpower the Janitor and Wait for Arrival of Other Employees

SHAMROCK, Tex.—(AP)—The First National Bank of Shamrock was robbed of approximately $10,000 Friday by two young men who evidently carried out a carefully planned holdup plot.

The robbers overpowered the bank janitor, Isham Hayes, when he came to work just before daylight. They tied him securely, then laid in wait for the arrival of other employees.

Five bank officials were captured by one of the men.

They were forced to open the vault and turn its contents over to the robbers. Then the officials were tied and left lying on the bank floor.

The robbers ran out the door and fled in a maroon-colored car. It was believed they escaped in the direction of McLean. One of the robbers pulled off a pair of overalls he was wearing and left them in the bank.

The bank officials managed to work free of their bonds in a few minutes and notified officers throughout the Panhandle region.

Budget Is Important Part of Home-Making

Mrs. Kate Stafford to Discuss Women's Problems at Star's Cooking School

A sketch for the "ideal homemaker" she must have executive ability. She must be a good purchasing agent and know how to buy intelligently. She must be something of a chemist in order to watch her family's diet.

She must be an economist and a gracious hostess.

Mrs. Kate Stafford, who is to conduct The Star's fourth annual free Cooking School beginning Tuesday, March 15, at the Saenger theater, admits that the outline may sound formidable, but she has compiled it from the many characteristics of women whom she has met in her widely divergent lectures and travels over the United States.

And its achievement is within the power of the average American woman, she believes, who has personal ambition and an eager interest in her family.

But she does not place the entire responsibility upon the woman of the household. She calls on the husband to assume a certain share of the efforts his wife must make to fulfill her role as homemaker—and the "short" of this challenge to the husband is—"Treat your wife as a business partner in the home."

"Of all the tales that are told to me," Mrs. Stafford declares, "by hundreds of women who are struggling with the problems of the household I find that lack of understanding and co-operation between husband and wife is responsible mainly for unhappiness in the home. One tells me that her husband cannot see any reason why she should have a definite sum each month for the expenses of the home herself and the children; another, that her husband refuses to budget personal and household expenses; another, that she never knows what becomes of her husband's salary each month—all revolving to the same point of contention—money."

For this reason, the home economics expert declares, many women are leaving their homes to seek employment that will give them, at least, definite remuneration.

"A man would not expect one of his employees to work for him without any agreement as to salary," Mrs. Stafford says further; "no more should he expect his wife to carry on the huge and heavy task of caring for his home and children without some definite and stable basis of management."

The family budget is one of the means which Mrs. Stafford has found will go far toward producing a smoothly running household. It is possible for every family to adopt the budget system, she believes, and she will explain many of the phases of this method of management in her daily Cooking School lectures, every afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Miss Ruth Royal, star of the Band Box Revue, which finished an engagement at the Saenger Theatre Friday, entertained Hope Kiwanis club at its weekly meeting at the New Capital Hotel Friday night at 7 o'clock. # SOCIETY NEWS

Mrs. Sid Henry Telephone 821

We have worry and fretting from morn till night,
And anguish weighs on the heart;
The thorny way seems hard to right,
And life is a bitter part;
But there is a burden greater yet,
Much peace of soul it has cost;
It is building a bridge with toil and sweat
O'er the stream that is never crossed.
There's looking for crossings all the day,
And searching along the shore
For a bridge or ford along the way,
We shall never travel o'er.
Then gather the roses along the way,
And treasure the fragrance rare;
Rejoice in the bright and joyous day,
Refusing to borrow care;
For sorrow and pain will surely come,
And your soul be tried and tossed;
But don't be bridging to reach your home,
O'er the stream that is never crossed.

Old Vincennes Cathedral Saw British Surrender to Clark

VINCENNES, Ind.—(AP)—One of the old northwest here in the St. Francis Xavier church, known as the Old Cathedral by the native French of old Vincennes.

The Old Cathedral, founded in 1702 by French settlers who came down from Quebec played a historic part in the formation of the northwest territory which comprised five states—Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, and a part of Minnesota. It was within the walls of the Old Cathedral that Colonel Henry Hamilton of the British army signed papers surrendering Fort Mifflin—now Vincennes—to Colonel George Rogers Clark, for whom now the federal government is building a memorial costing $1,750,000 at Vincennes.

The first cathedral was built of logs and was roughly finished. The church was rebuilt in 1783 under the supervision of Father Pierre Ghabault, Catholic priest who was assigned to Vincennes during Colonel Clark's expedition to Kaskaskia and Fort Sackville. In 1826 the church was rebuilt again—this time of stone. This edifice still stands in a remarkable state of preservation.

The Old Cathedral, after it was rebuilt in 1826, was the diocesan church for a section comprising Indiana and Illinois and five bishops served at the cathedral before Indianapolis was made the diocesan city.

At the west of the church is the old French cemetery where priests, laymen, soldiers and negro slaves are buried. The oldest record of a burial is 1750.

Another historic part of the Old Cathedral is its library, which contains 5000 volumes, many of which were printed before 1700. Some of the dictionaries and geographies date back to 1680.

Old Vincennes cathedral... now known as St. Francis Xavier church... was first built of logs in 1702.

The bell, moulded from jewels brought to this country by French settlers, is rung only on special occasions. The first record of its ringing was in December, 1778, when the townspeople were called together to renounce the sovereignty of Great Britain. The bell was rung again when the World War armistice was declared on November 11, 1918.

The Rev. Stingley Delivered First Sermon Just 30 Years Ago

The Rev. W. H. Stingley will deliver a sermon in the Baptist church at Elvins next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the first sermon he preached.

Thirty years ago, or the first Sunday in March, 1902, the young Rev. Stingley, just completing his ministerial studies, appeared in the pulpit for the first time. The church that he preached in that day was in the old Wal-laceburg community before the town of Elvins was in existence. His text for his first sermon and the one he will use Sunday are identical.

A short program in addition to the sermon has been arranged by Rev. Stingley to be presented at the service. Among the numbers will be a recitation entitled "Old Friends," by his daughter, Miss Mary Sue. Insofar as possible Rev. Stingley is anxious that the families of those who listened to his first sermon, or representatives of them, be present at the service on Sunday. Also he extends a cordial invitation to all who will to be in attendance.

Body of Veteran Found on Tracks

Jim Cravens, Address Undetermined, Is Killed by Train at Walnut Ridge

WALNUT RIDGE—The body of Jim Cravens, aged about 35, was found Wednesday beside the Missouri Pacific tracks. Apparently he had been dead several hours. Coroner W. G. Johnson identified the body by discharge papers from a government hospital in Montana and from a card which asked that in case of accident, notice be sent to an address in Louisville, Ky. Mr. Johnson has had no response from telegrams sent to that address, and late Wednesday afternoon telegraphed the United States Veterans Bureau. A coroner's jury found that Cravens came to his death either by being accidentally struck or by falling off a train. Night Marshal C. B. Wilkerson identified the body as that of a man with whom he talked on the streets late Tuesday night.

Wilkerson said the man was sitting on a concrete piling near the railroad tracks and was warned that he was sitting dangerously close to the tracks.

Revenge Advanced As Kidnap Motive

Mother of Abducted Boy, Awaiting Ransom Note, Loses Hope

NILES, Ohio.—(AP)—The mother had almost given up hope here Thursday night of receiving a note from kidnapers demanding ransom for her son, James DeJule Jr., 11.

Almost 48 hours have passed since the boy fought with the kidnapers. Officers turned to theories of revenge or the work of a band of motives.

Carrying a gun, DeJule Sr., wealthy contractor, continued the hunt with police after only a short rest during the night. He raised his offer of a reward for the capture of the kidnapers from $1,000 to $5,000.

Two alleged bootleggers were traced in Youngstown in the belief they may be involved, but they had fled when officers arrived at the hideout.

Sheriff John C. Risher denied a report that deputies and a Niles policeman had gone to southern Ohio to recover a tip from Portsmouth.

The boy was abducted on his way to school with his cousin, Anna May Melins, 12, of Ashkubla, Ohio.

Large Estate Left By Mystery Woman

$30,000 in Securities Revealed at Death of 'Victim of Poverty'

MEMPHIS—(AP)—Body of a mysterious Mrs. Viola Kaufman, 77, who lived in poverty and died here Thursday leaving an estate said to be valued at $30,000, was held at an undertaking parlor Thursday night.

Funeral directors said Mrs. Kaufman told friends before her death that her will was in the hands of Charles H. Toll of Los Angeles. She was quoted as saying she had bonds and other holdings valued at approximately $30,000, all in the hands of Mr. Toll, who, she said, would serve as executor.

The undertakers said they had received instructions from Mr. Toll that Mrs. Kaufman, staunch advocate of birth control, was to be buried without religious ceremony or display. They said they telegraphed Mr. Toll for more funds.

Mrs. Kaufman was quoted as saying before her death that her will directed that her property go to the Birth Control Clinical Research Bureau of New York.

A notebook found among her belongings indicated she had small bank deposits at Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and San Diego.

She died at the General hospital after coming here during the Christmas holidays to make her home at the Salvation Army. Her clothing was torn and she was described by Mrs. R. Laddow, wife of the supervisor of Salvation Army headquarters, as "the most pitiful sight I have seen in many years."

Son of Wealthy Ohioan Kidnaped

Wide Search for 11-Year old Boy Abducted by 2 Men Wednesday

NILES, Ohio—(AP)—As thousands of police hunted the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., North Ohio officers pushed Wednesday night their search for the abductors of James De Jute, Jr., 11, son of a wealthy Niles contractor.

The father with the entire police force of Trumbull county hunted the boy, while the distracted mother awaited a ransom note from the two men who rushed the child off in an automobile Wednesday morning.

James fought off the kidnapers once, but the men grabbed him again, his cousin, Anna May Mellina, 12, of Ashtabula, Ohio, told police. The children were on their way to school.

Spurred by a $1000 reward offered by the father for the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers, neighbors, farmers and police of surrounding counties were on guard with the Trumbull county deputies in the search.

Wednesday night no reliable clues had been found although an automobile resembling the light brown coupe in which the kidnapers escaped had been reported in Newton Falls, going toward Cleveland.

Police also were checking reports from neighbors of the De Jutes that a strange automobile and two men had been seen near the De Jute residence several times recently. The description of the men tallied with that of the kidnapers but the automobile was different.

De Jute believes that the child is held for ransom as he told officers that he had no known enemies and no labor troubles in his business as a contractor.

Review of Flood Control Ordered

Army Board to Determine Whether Any Modifications Necessary

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Designation of a board of three members to review flood control plans of the federal government and determine if modifications should be made was announced Wednesday by the War Department.

The order was issued by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, in compliance with a resolution adopted in January by the House Flood Control Committee.

The committee will consist of Col. Harley B. Ferguson, Corps of Engineers, division engineer at Norfolk, Va.; Col. George R. Spaulding, Corps of Engineers, division engineer at St. Louis, Mo.; and Dean Anson Marston of the University of Iowa.

First Lieut. John P. Dean of the army engineers, was designated recorder and executive of the board.

General Brown's orders outline six principal points for consideration. They were:

1. Protection against flood waters that must escape from the main leveed channel of the Mississippi river.
2. The way in which excess waters should escape from the main leveed channel.
3. Localities where excess waters should escape from the main leveed channel.
4. The practicability and desirability of increasing the discharge capacity of the main leveed channel in flood times, and at the same time improving conditions to navigation and measures for protection against flood waters that must of necessity escape from the main leveed channel as modified by any conclusion as to channel enlargement.
5. Practicability of creating artificial channels on the west side of the river for discharge of excess waters from the main leveed channel by the combined action of levees at high stages and locks.
